They were hell-bent on sharing eternity together - in one form or another!

The courtroom was packed when Brax gazed into Waylie's eyes for the first time. He caught his breath, for it seemed that a ray of sunshine was beamed upon her. In quick response, Waylie's heart stood still. Something that has no sound had passed between them, and she believed with all her heart that they were born to be soul mates. From that moment in Time, they were desperate to meet one another, "come hell or high water."

But as soon as Quirt, Waylie's step-dad, became aware of this "infatuation," he was just as determined to keep them apart because of Brax's notoriety. If they fell in love, he reasoned, it could only lead to tragedy - for she was a witness for the prosecution, and Brax was the defendant, accused of murder.

In spite of Quirt's warning that she and Brax were "star-crossed," Waylie kept dreaming the impossible dream, believing it was written in the stars that they would meet. When they finally met, their journey into "hell" would be punctuated by the sound of gunfire, and a cold, wild river would be the "high water." Then they knew they must either live - and love each other forever - or die, and share eternity together...
