We are all slaves to sex. Let's just admit this hard truth before beginning. Now that we have embraced something to base our beliefs on, it is time for us to explore what sex is all about. I advise we see it first, from a very historical and biological basis.

We all have seen failing marriages around us. We have also seen a lot of unhappy couples. So what do you think is the reason for most such cases? More often than not, a marriage with no or insufficient sex is a failing marriage. As a partner, you not only have the duty to ensure that your spouse is enjoying your body but you also reserve the right to explore theirs as well.

It was hundreds of years ago that Charles Darwin explained why humans do what they do, i.e. eat, sleep, have sex and repeat. Being a biologist and a keen observer, he did some research and concluded the following points- One, a human being does what he does to survive; second, all his activities are moving, whether apparent or not, towards only one great purpose- to stay alive; and third, his romantic selection does not depend on attraction but unintentional selection based on evolution. Hence took birth the evolutionary point of view of sex and its fair biological justification.
