"This is a great book and very well written...down to earth stories of how it use to be not that long ago." --I. Lou

"Loved this book. I was reared in Okmulgee OK during this time frame. Brought back memories I had completely forgotten. Thank you Mona for this lovely story of the 30s and 40s." --Odell

"This is some of the most pleasant reading I've ever done. Not only are the stories interesting but they're well written." --GypsySue

"Well written and edited and a great story besides. Bravo." --D.P. Williams

"I agree with the previous reviewers: this is a delight". --Bob D. Lambert

Mona Phipps describes growing up in the state of Oklahoma in the 1930's and 40's, and the rich family tapestry of being a 12th generation American. From visits to her ancestral home in Kentucky, to working in her father's "great depression" era bakery, from the bloody post civil-war stories told by her grandfather, to the great dust bowl of 1930, the author takes the reader on a touching and heartfelt journey into the experience of growing up amidst the red dirt fields of early 20th century Oklahoma.

Also available on Amazon: Red Dirt Lady, Mona's followup to Red Dirt Girl.
